

Campus transformation – our new hospital is taking shape!

Since the turning of the first sod in May 2019 to mark commencement of construction, our new Clinical Services Building has emerged from the ground and is now a major feature of the hospital campus.

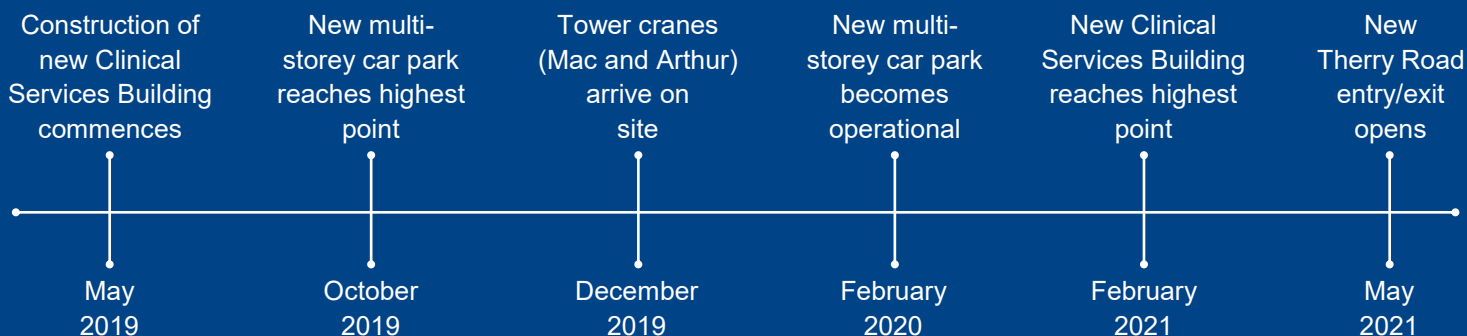

During the last two years we've celebrated some key construction milestones, including the arrival of Mac and Arthur – our tower cranes, the first slab pour and most recently, the building reaching its highest point.

Construction activity on the main build site is now focused on the installation of windows and external cladding/louvres, along with internal fit out. The two tower cranes will soon disappear from the site, and scaffolding will gradually be removed to reveal the building's façade.

Alongside the new building construction, a significant program of refurbishment works is underway. A new space for the hospital's Equipment Loan Pool is currently under construction, with the service set to relocate in coming weeks.

While works continue in the P1 car park to support access to the future Emergency Department, this month will also see the opening of a new hospital entry/exit from Therry Road. This alternate entry to the hospital campus is aimed at diverting traffic from the Parkside Crescent roundabout entry to prioritise emergency vehicle access to our busy Emergency Department. On completion of the new Clinical Services Building, this new access road will be the primary entry point for the hospital's main car park.

Staff explore their new work spaces

A program of tours is giving Campbelltown Hospital staff the opportunity to get a sneak peek of the new clinical services building while its still in the construction phase.

More than 25 staff familiarisation tours have already been held to help our teams visualise the spaces and plan for how they'll work in the new areas. Teams will re-visit their workspaces throughout the year to follow progress and start planning for the future move.

This process supports the commissioning phase of the project that will take place once the building has been completed and is handed over to the facility to move in all equipment, train staff and prepare for becoming operational, which is currently scheduled for a three month period in early 2022.

Video showcases value of the arts

Integration of the arts is being planned on a grand scale as part of the redevelopment project, supporting the health and wellbeing of patients, visitors and staff.

Developed in partnership with Campbelltown Arts Centre, an Arts and Culture Strategy is helping to design and create a hospital that is welcoming, fosters healing, and celebrates our region through murals, installations and local totems.

Learn more about the initiative in our latest video showcasing how the arts are being incorporated into the new building and some of the people who have played a key role in bringing the strategy to life.
